Trade and Investment Policy

Bilateral Relations Switzerland / EU

Current Status	The European Union (EU) is Switzerland's most significant trading partner. Simultaneously, Switzerland is also one of the EU's largest export and import markets. Therefore, the relationship between Switzerland and the EU is crucial for the Swiss economy. Switzerland is pursuing a bilateral approach in this regard. Beginning with the free trade agreement signed in 1972, Switzerland has established a dense and ever-evolving network of agreements with the association of states. The Bilateral I and II agreements are particularly noteworthy as they grant the contracting parties non-discriminatory access to each other's markets and establish close cooperation in various areas between Switzerland and the EU. This bilateral approach has brought numerous advantages to Switzerland. However, the EU has linked the further development of the agreement network to a clarification of the institutional framework. Based on this demand, a draft agreement was drawn up between 2014 and 2018. At its meeting on May 26, 2021, the Federal Council decided not to sign the institutional framework agreement and to end negotiations with the EU. The body believes that various substantial differences could not be resolved. Nevertheless, the Federal Council would like to continue bilateral cooperation. End of March, the Federal Council discussed the next steps and gave the mandate to formulate key requirements for negotiating terms with the European Union (EU). At the same time, the common ground with the EU is to be further specified with a view to opening negotiations.
Outlook	Orderly and secure relations between the European Union and Switzerland are essential for both sides. For the foreseeable future, the EU member states will remain extremely important trading partners for the strongly export-oriented Swiss economy for the foreseeable future. It must therefore remain a priority goal that the bilateral path can be successfully preserved. SwissHoldings welcomes the fact that the Federal Council is endeavoring to ensure that the bilateral agreements are applied as smoothly as possible,

even without the conclusion of the InstA. From the association's point of view, it is also important to exhaust all possibilities that Switzerland can implement unilaterally to strengthen the framework conditions, in order to ensure the competitiveness of our country.

Free Trade Agreement

Current Status	The Swiss Economy has a strong global orientation and is therefore dependent on cross-border trade and international investment activities. Thus, the constant improvement of access to foreign markets was and is a focus of Swiss foreign policy. Amongst other channels, this is accomplished through free trade agreements with third parties. In addition to the EFTA Convention and the free trade agreement with the European Union (EU), Switzerland has a network of 33 free trade agreements with 43 partners worldwide. Therefore, in association with the other EFTA states, Switzerland is currently negotiating free trade agreements with seven new partner states: namely India, Kosovo, Malaysia, Mercosur, Moldova, Thailand and Vietnam, as well as the modernization of various existing agreements.
Outlook	Especially against the backdrop of trade conflicts, the blockade of the World Trade Organization (WTO), growing protectionism and the expansion of free trade agreements. Maintaining free trade is very important for the export-oriented Swiss economy and the member companies of SwissHoldings. Concerns are being increasingly expressed regarding sustainable development in connection with global trade. Of course, SwissHoldings recognizes and supports the claim that sustainability aspects are deservedly taken into account within the considerations of free trade agreements. The chapter on "Sustainability and Trade" provides a solid foundation for promoting sustainable development. Moreover, it should not be neglected that intensified trade relations are an important factor in promoting sustainable development. SwissHoldings will continue to advocate for the important expansion of the Swiss network of free trade agreements.

Investment Controls

Current Status	The introduction of investment controls is also currently being discussed in Switzerland. On May 18, 2022, the Federal Council published the preliminary draft of a new Investment Control Law and submitted it for consultation. Prior to this, Parliament had called for a corresponding legal basis by adopting motion 18.3021 Rieder. The proposal is to introduce a reporting and approval requirement for certain acquisitions of domestic companies The Federal Council presented a regulatory impact assessment on the preliminary draft as part of the consultation process. The RIA concludes that the cost-benefit ratio of such a new law is unfavorable. Consequently, the panel continues to oppose the introduction of an investment audit. It considers the existing legal framework to be sufficient. SwissHoldings participated in the consultation (link Opinion) and essentially stated: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Foreign direct investment is central to Switzerland. In the small and open Swiss economy, the prosperity of the population and the competitiveness of companies depend directly on integration into global value chains.

	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Since Swiss companies themselves are among the largest direct investors abroad, Switzerland has a particular interest in accessing international investment markets as non-discriminatory and transparent as possible. Switzerland is most likely to achieve this if it shows itself to be open to foreign investment. - The Federal Council presented a Regulatory Impact Assessment (RIA) on the preliminary draft as part of the consultation process. The RIA concludes that the cost-benefit ratio of such a new law is unfavorable: for this reason, the panel remains opposed to the introduction of an investment audit. It considers the existing legal framework to be sufficient. SwissHoldings supports this position. - However, the question of whether Switzerland should introduce an investment audit cannot be assessed in isolation from international developments. If OECD member states introduce restrictions on certain foreign investments across the board, then this must be taken into account when assessing the Swiss regulatory approach - not least to prevent a pull effect being triggered on the Swiss economy. - In this context, the present draft represents a compromise. In order to keep the legal risks for the economy as small as possible, such a state intervention mechanism should be examined in the context of a targeted, administratively lean and transparent design. It is also important that the regulation is compatible with Switzerland's existing obligations under International Law.
Outlook	The Federal Council is currently in the process of preparing a draft law for the introduction of investment controls and will submit this to parliamentary consultations in the current year. The law is not expected to enter into force before 2024

Investment Protection Agreement (ISA)

Current Status	Switzerland has a network of a total of 111 bilateral investment protection agreements (ISA). According to UNCTAD, Switzerland thus has the third-largest network of such agreements in the world after Germany and China. By concluding ISAs, Switzerland improves the framework conditions and thus its attractiveness as a location for international investments. Due to a change in practice by the Federal Council, ISAs are now subject to an optional state treaty referendum in addition to free trade agreements. The first ISA to be subject to consultation is the new ISA with Indonesia. The agreement closes the gap in the treaty that has existed since the previous agreement expired in 2016.
Outlook	SwissHoldings will continue to closely follow the regulatory developments around the investment agreements and in this context will point out the great importance of ISA and international arbitration for Swiss companies and Switzerland as a business location.

Corporate Social Responsibility

Corporate Responsibility Initiative

Current Status

The popular initiative was rejected at the ballot box on November 29, 2020, paving the way for the indirect counter-proposal's entry into effect. The Federal Council presented the ordinance on the indirect counter-proposal on December 3, 2021, which imposed new obligations based on EU regulations and, in some cases, went beyond them. The law took effect on January 1, 2022, meaning that Swiss companies would have to report in accordance with the new rules for the first time for the 2023 financial year.

On November 23, 2022, at its meeting, the Federal Council adopted the executive order on climate reporting ("TCFD") for large Swiss companies and brought it into effect on January 1, 2024.

For further information and the preprint of the ordinance, please visit

The Federal Council also evaluated the need for Switzerland to adapt to the dynamic developments in EU law regarding sustainable corporate governance. The body decided to prepare a consultation draft by July 2024 at the latest to examine the applicability of the new EU rules for ESG reporting. However, in the area of due diligence, it is still intended to wait. SwissHoldings welcomed this decision, as the contours of the EU's new regulation to monitor risks in value chains are just beginning to emerge. (see also media release SwissHoldings: Federal Council rightly adheres to an internationally coordinated approach in the area of corporate responsibility - SwissHoldings).

In addition, the Legal Commission of both Councils is currently dealing with the parliamentary initiative (Pa.Iv) Gredig (21.427) - "Combating forced labor by expanding the scope of the counterproposal UVI." The aim of the parliamentary initiative is to extend the scope of the counterproposal to include the prohibition of forced labor in the special due diligence obligations and transparency on conflict minerals and child labor (Art. 964j et seq. CO). The focus here is on the core conventions ratified by Switzerland of the International Labor Organization No. 29 on forced or compulsory labor and

	No. 105 on the abolition of forced labor, the UN Guiding Principles on Business and Human Rights, and the OECD Guidelines.
Outlook	The new obligations associated with the implementation of the counterproposal are challenging, especially in the area of child labor. The association will support the implementation work for the member companies as far as possible and offer a platform for the exchange of expertise.

Developments EU level

Current Status	The European Commission is presently considering potential regulations in the area of Sustainable Corporate Governance and related Due Diligence. In the first half of 2022, it published a proposal for a directive on Corporate Sustainability Due Diligence. The specific objective is to define corporate interests under European law, taking into account sustainability criteria. Additionally, the initiative focuses on the implementation of corporate due diligence obligations in global supply chains. The proposal must still go through the legislative process. Currently, the EU Council has adopted its negotiating position on December 1st: Council adopts position on due diligence rules for large companies - Consilium (europa.eu) . Nonetheless, the details of this regulation are only beginning to emerge. If approved, the directive must be transposed into national law by the Member States. There is typically some flexibility in the implementation of directives. According to the assessment of the Swiss Mission to the European Union, the earliest date for adoption is Summer 2023, but it may also take longer.
Outlook	SwissHoldings member companies are likely to be directly affected by this new EU regulation in the area of Sustainable Corporate Governance, The regulation provides for a third country regime - through which Swiss companies operating in the EU are directly covered by EU regulations above a certain size.

Collective Legal Protection

Current Status	On December 10, 2021, the Federal Council presented the class action bill and passed it for the attention of Parliament. The bill provides for the expansion of the existing class action, the creation of a new class action for the assertion of compensation claims, and the possibility of settlements declared binding by the courts. The business community is critical of these plans, which the Federal Council would like to establish without prior consultation, and has submitted a joint submission in view of the preliminary deliberations of the Legal Commission of the National Council (RK-N) on June 24, 2022.

	At this meeting in June, the RK-N decided not to act on class actions. It was not possible at the present time to decide on the development of instruments of so-called "collective redress." Essential questions had not yet been clarified. The FDJP was subsequently requested by the Commission to draw up a more comprehensive legal comparison of collective action rights in selected EU states, to examine alternative instruments for "improved access to justice" (including the adaptation of existing instruments), and to analyze the new technological possibilities for the efficient assertion of claims and the associated facilitation of coordination among affected parties. Furthermore, an estimate of the cost consequences of the discussed regulation for the affected Swiss companies was commissioned from the Department of Justice ("Regulatory Impact Assessment"). In view of these extensive clarifications, further deliberations on the bill are expected to resume in the second quarter of 2023 at the earliest.
Outlook	SwissHoldings supports this decision. From the association's point of view, the business is not ready for political consultation.

Accounting and Reporting

IFRS Standard Setting

Current Status	The focus of the work was to support and comment on the IASB's consultation on "IAS 12 Income Taxes," in which the Board proposed amendments to IAS 12 Income Taxes. The aim is to provide temporary relief in accounting for deferred taxes arising from the forthcoming implementation of the second pillar model rules published by the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD). The IASB is responding to stakeholder concerns about the potential impact of these rules on the accounting for income taxes in financial statements (the SwissHoldings comment letter can be found at the following link: SwissHoldings comment letter on ED International Tax Reform-Pillar Two Model Rules).
Outlook	SwissHoldings will continue to actively follow the work of the IFRS Foundation in both areas (financial reporting and sustainability reporting) and participate in relevant consultations.

Sustainable Finance Switzerland Strategy

Current Status	At the end of 2023, the Federal Council published two strategy documents for a sustainable financial center and possible fields of action in general in the area of sustainable finance ("Sustainable Finance Switzerland - Fields of Action 2022-2025 for a Leading Sustainable Financial Center" and Position Greenwashing Prevention in the Financial Sector). The Sustainable Finance Switzerland report highlights the role of the Swiss financial center in terms of sustainability and identifies past and future fields of action. Four fields of action are addressed: (1) sustainability data from the overall economy, (2) transparency in the financial sector, (3) impact investments and green bonds, and (4) pricing of environmental pollution. A total of 15 specific measures can be grouped into the action areas. As shown in the report, many of the measures have already been addressed. In the position paper on greenwashing, the Federal Council has specified its approach in this regard. Financial products or services should only be offered as sustainable if they are compatible with at least one specific sustainability goal or contribute to achieving a sustainability goal. This is to ensure that financial products and services that are intended to reduce any ESG risks are only designated as sustainable if they pursue a sustainable investment objective in addition to a purely financial one. Providers of sustainable products or services should explain how they intend to achieve the intended sustainable investment objective.
Outlook	It is true that many of the aspects under discussion are aimed exclusively at the financial sector. However, the real economy is - at least indirectly - directly affected by the discussion and the planned regulatory approaches. For example, financial services companies depend on information and data sets from issuers to fulfill their transparency obligations. Generally speaking, the primary lever for a transition to a sustainable economy lies with the real economy, which directly influences the various sustainability areas through the production and consumption of goods and services. SwissHoldings will therefore closely follow the planned work of the Federal Government in coordination with the other industry associations.

Sustainable Finance & ESG Reporting at EU Level

Current Status	At the EU level, the topic of sustainability is central to public discussion. The European Commission has become actively involved in this discussion through various initiatives. In 2020, the EU adopted the Action Plan for Financing Sustainable Growth, which forms the basis for several legislative initiatives. Among these initiatives is the Taxonomy Regulation, which is particularly relevant for preparers. With the introduction of the Taxonomy, companies will be required to classify all their business activities in a classification scheme to determine the "green character" of their economic activity. Companies will also need to disclose separately the share of sales, the share of investments ("CapEx"), and the share of operating expenses ("OpEx"). Additionally, all these activities must be evaluated in relation to minimum social criteria. The action plan also includes a proposal for a Corporate Sustainability Reporting Directive (CSRD) to replace the existing Non financial Reporting Directive (NFRD). The directive was adopted at the EU level on November 10. The core element of the CSRD is that reporting will no longer be based on an internationally accepted standard such as GRI, but on a new European standard to be developed. Other significant changes include a substantial expansion of the required report content (such as forward-looking elements and information on intangible assets) and the principle that all information must be made available via a digital reporting structure. SH member companies are likely to be directly affected by both of these regulatory measures due to their close economic ties with EU member states.
Outlook	SwissHoldings views the current initiatives for greater standardization in the area of sustainable finance and ESG reporting as fundamentally positive. A more uniform framework for mapping a company's sustainability performance helps create clarity and trust between investors and preparers. However, the association emphasizes that sustainability data must always be placed in a comprehensible context with business strategy and financial reporting in the future. The criteria of relevance, feasibility, and cost/benefit ratio should always apply to transparency requirements. While the EU's ambitious plans offer opportunities for sustainability-oriented investors and companies, they also harbor the risk of disproportionate market intervention. The newly envisaged transparency and disclosure requirements for companies in the area of ESG are high and threaten to overwhelm many market players.

	SwissHoldings is monitoring ongoing developments and continues to support the business, particularly within the framework of the working group of umbrella organizations at the European level.

Exchange Equivalence - Extension of the Exchange Protection Measure

Current Status	The EU granted Switzerland stock exchange equivalence only until the end of June 2019, but then did not extend it. For this reason, Switzerland activated the measure to protect the Swiss Stock Exchange Infrastructure on July 1, 2019. Since January 1, 2019, foreign trading venues are subject to a recognition obligation, specifically if they admit certain shares of Swiss companies to trading or enable trading in such shares (see also link). At its meeting on June 22, 2022, the Federal Council adopted the dispatch on the transfer of the Stock Exchange Protection Measure into ordinary law. This step is necessary because the safeguard measure will otherwise cease to apply and the European Union (EU) has not yet recognized Swiss stock exchange regulation as equivalent. In the spring session of 2023, the Swiss Parliament finally adopted the transfer of the exchange protection measure into ordinary law.
Outlook	SwissHoldings is supporting the bill on a cross-divisional basis and advocating for the interests of its member companies.

Monetary Policy SNB

Current Status	In today's extraordinary times, the Swiss National Bank (SNB) is increasingly in the spotlight. At the parliamentary level, various proposals have been discussed with the aim of tying the SNB's distributions to certain purposes. In addition, concerns have recently been raised calling for a reform of the SNB's governance structure.
Outlook	SwissHoldings will closely follow the ongoing developments. From the association's point of view, the SNB's current orientation has proven its worth. The organization is critical of a "politicization" or further earmarking of the SNB's profits.
